Norway welcomes the decision by the First Committee to establish a working group on a Treaty banning the production of fissile materials for nuclear weapons or other nuclear devices. A Fissile Material Cutoff Treaty could be an important contribution to promote disarmament and prevent proliferation. It is the view of Norway that the full potential of such a treaty would only be reached if it were also to include measures regarding existing stocks of fissile materials. This would further the value of the Treaty as a measure to support the goal of eliminating nuclear weapons. We are looking forward to study the report and recommendations from the working group to the General Assembly at its sixty-eights session.
