1 Notes on using the cover page:

1. The cover page could be used as a complement to submitting detailed forms adopted at the Meetings of the States parties in instances when the information to be provided in some of the forms in an annual report is the same as in past reports. That is, when using the cover page, only forms within which there is new information would need to be submitted.

2. The cover page could be used as a substitute for submitting detailed forms adopted at the Meetings of the States parties only if all of the information to be provided in an annual report is the same as in past reports.

3. If an indication is made on the cover sheet that the information to be provided with respect to a particular form would be unchanged in relationship to a previous year’s form, the date of submission of the previous form should be clearly indicated.

4. The cover page may be used for subsequent annual reports and is not to be used for the initial Article 7 report submission.

Supplementary information

In addition, in the 1970s and early 1980s Australia conducted the KARINGA project. The KARINGA project included design trials of an indigenous cluster munition, as well as operational test and evaluation trials. The trials of the KARINGA project did not result in a production run. The KARINGA was not certified for operational employment, was never introduced into service, and has not been used in any operations. Most of the Karingas were destroyed in the early 1990s, along with the CBU-58s that it was base-lined against. The remaining samples of cluster munitions were made inert and are not defined as cluster munitions under the Convention on Cluster Munitions. Notwithstanding they are retained for training and counter-measures purposes consistent with the Convention.
Form E  Status and progress of programmes for conversion or decommissioning of production facilities

Form F  Contaminated areas and clearance

Article 7, paragraph 1

“Each State Party shall report to the Secretary-General ... on:

(h) To the extent possible, the size and location of all cluster munition contaminated areas under its jurisdiction or control, to include as much detail as possible regarding the type and quantity of each type of cluster munition remnant in each such area and when they were used;

(i) The status and progress of programmes for the clearance and destruction of all types and quantities of cluster munition remnants cleared and destroyed in accordance with article 4 of this Convention, to include the size and location of the cluster munition contaminated area cleared and a breakdown to the quantity of each type of cluster munition remnant cleared and destroyed;”

Where possible, refer to the corresponding contaminated area described in [Form F, table 1].

 Supplementary information

Australia previously tested limited numbers of cluster munitions on Australian military weapon test ranges in the 1970s and early 1980s. These sites are active military weapon test ranges and have continuously been used to test a variety of ordnance over the decades. The ranges are still used today for weapon and munition testing. These ranges are regularly risk assessed and cleared to the requisite standard for an active military test range. The ranges do not pose a threat to civilians as they are geographically remote, appropriately marked, and public access is restricted and controlled.

Article 7, paragraph 1

“Each State Party shall report to the Secretary-General ... on:

(j) The measures taken to provide risk reduction education and, in particular, an immediate and effective warning to civilians living in cluster munition contaminated areas under its jurisdiction or control;”

State [Party]: Australia

Reporting for time period from 1 January 2014 to 31 December 2014

1. Measures taken to provide risk reduction education

The Australian Defence Force (ADF) has not used and does not use cluster munitions operationally. Nor has there been a conflict on Australian territory involving the use of cluster munitions. There has not been a conflict in which Australia has been involved during the reporting period where cluster munitions have been used in an area under Australia’s jurisdiction or control.

2. Measures taken for effective warning of the population

Not applicable (see form F, Table 1).
Form H  Victim assistance: status and progress of implementation of the obligations under article 5

Article 7, paragraph 1
